

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, RIVERSIDE
HELLMAN FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM
2019-2020

PROGRAM INFORMATION AND DUE DATES

PURPOSE OF THE PROGRAM

The Hellman Fellows Fund has contributed funds to establish the UC Riverside Hellman Fellows Program to provide support and encouragement for the research and creative activities of promising faculty at the Assistant Professor rank who exhibit potential for great distinction in their area of expertise. The purpose of the fellowship is to support research and creative activities that will promote career advancement and enhance the individual's progress toward tenure.

ELIGIBILITY

- Full-time Assistant Professors in the colleges of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences; Natural and Agricultural Sciences; or Engineering are eligible if they have completed at least two but not more than four full years of service by July 1, 2019. In addition, candidates may not be under consideration for tenure at the time the fellowship is awarded and will not be under consideration for tenure while holding a Hellman Fellowship. Please note, faculty who are eligible will be notified and sent an invitation to apply by the central Academic Personnel Office. If you were not sent an invitation and you believe you are eligible, please contact the central Academic Personnel Office at apwebmaster@ucr.edu. You must receive an invitation in order to apply.
- If a full-time Assistant Professor has a partial FTE appointment in the colleges of Humanities, Arts and Social Sciences; Natural and Agricultural Sciences; or Engineering and a partial FTE appointment in a non-qualifying academic unit, he/she can apply using the qualifying college/department.
- If an applicant spent one or more years at another research 1 or research 2 university before coming to UC Riverside, that time may be counted toward the total appointment criteria. That is, the applicant has to have completed at least two full years as an Assistant Professor at a research 1 or research 2 institution by the start of the Fellowship on July 1, 2019.

SELECTION CRITERIA

- Preference in awarding Hellman Fellowships will be given to faculty who show great promise in research/creative activities and have outstanding proposals, but who may have only modest means to support their scholarship and have never received other young investigator awards. Many government agencies (i.e., NIH, NSF, etc.) and professional societies give research grants called "Young Investigator Awards," specifically designated for researchers in the early period of their careers. Because these awards provide recognition and funding for researchers at the Assistant Professor level that may duplicate the purpose of the Hellman Fellowship, those applicants who hold such awards will be given lower priority for a Hellman Fellowship.

FELLOWSHIP INFORMATION

- Fellowship funds may be used for expenses such as laboratory equipment, travel to a professional meeting or a site where data will be collected, and salaries for research assistants, students, or postdoctoral fellows. Funds may not be used for Academic Year salaries or faculty summer salary. A faculty member may request to use the funds to “buy out” their responsibility for teaching up to one course per year.
- The maximum award amount for 2019-2020 is $30,000. A budget justification for the amount requested is required. The duration of the award is normally one year, but if the awardee does not expend the entire award in the first grant year, he/she may request permission to carry forward any remaining balance to the next academic year. In any event, award recipients are required to spend all funds before their tenure case is put forward for consideration.
- Recipients agree to write a thank you letter to the Hellman Family and attend a luncheon meeting and share their work with the Hellman Family Fund Trustees.
- The application form and additional information can be found at http://academicpersonnel.ucr.edu/programs_and_awards/hellman.html. Submit completed applications electronically to: apwebmaster@ucr.edu

AWARDS WILL BE BASED ON

- Excellence of the proposal
