

Recruit Release Notes Changes Launching 2015-06-30

Waivers

You can now create search waivers in Recruit. This feature is purposely bare-bones at this point, but it is meant to serve as the basis for future work. It's off by default, but if you would like to get a preview we have enabled it on all QA sites.

Compliance

There is new help text about Interview Materials, which should help analysts know what should be uploaded into that space in order to remain compliant with OFCCP regulations.

User Interface

We have cleaned up the display of recruitment dates on the apply page that lists all open recruitments as well as on each recruitment's detail page. This will help make the application deadlines and review dates more clear to applicants, so they will know when they need to apply in order to be considered by the committee.

Our old friend the Applications tab is no more, and all analysts and search committee members should now use the Recruitments tab instead. The former has been redirecting you to the latter for months now, and it was time to cut down on the clutter.

LEARN MORE

Infrastructure

We have moved all Training sites to Amazon Web Services, and will be notifying campuses about downtime to production sites when we are ready to move them.

We also updated the site to use Rails 4.1.11 to protect against a security vulnerability that could have resulted in downtime.

Updated User Guide

The Recruit user guide has been updated with all the latest features and changes, and is now available on the Recruit Project Site.

Notable Bugs Fixed

- When adding an offer while changing an applicant's status, Recruit would silently fail to save if you provided invalid information. It now complains properly.
